Keynote Speaker:
Don Yaeger

What Makes the Great Ones Great. As a sports writer and author of more than a dozen books, Don has had a front row seat with some of the greatest winners in athletics, including Walter Payton,

Jimmy Connors, Michael Jordan, John Wooden, Pat Riley and Dale Brown. They are all legends in their own right, but does anyone believe the athletes mentioned above are really the GREATEST athletes of their time, physically? Remember, Jordan wasn't even the first pick in the draft. Payton had to go to a small black college because bigger schools didn't want to risk a scholarship on him. Each became a champion through strength and skills that had nothing to do with physical prowess.

Using rich personal accounts gathered from more than twenty years of interviews with many of today's sports legends and business leaders, Don has distilled Sixteen Consistent Characteristics of Greatness. Don shares some of these characteristics with audiences, in an easy, engaging style, which helps participants realize that they, too, can achieve a higher level of personal success.
